Drain levies halted by county

By CHRISTINE RIZK
ANP Staff Writer

Huron Township residents are exempt from the Vandicar Drain assessments until completion of a county investigation into the levying practices of Charles Youngblood, the county drain commissioner.

According to Wayne County Commissioner Milton Mack, the decision to halt the drain assessments, which were due in December, came after a 12-to-0 vote of the county commissioners Tuesday, Oct. 29.

Commissioners voted to take the drain levies off the December tax roll in order to investigate why "costs were so excessive" in the cleaning and dredging, in 1984, of two and one-half miles of the Vandicar Drain, an open-ditch drain located in southwest Wayne County.

Approximately $193,000 has been spent by the county in what began as an attempt by five Huron Township residents to have the their drains cleaned.

As a result, the cost of the project was divided among over 200 tax payers with some assessments ranging as high as $15,000 for a resident's portion of the drain.

The entire project, which encompassed areas in Sumptor Township as well, will be evaluated by the Wayne County Audit Committee, the Wayne County auditor general and the legislature research bureau.

The investigation will determine, Mack said, whether or not the law was followed in levying the assessments, in the bidding practices of the county drain commissioner's office and in compliance with the drain code.

It could, he said, potentially lead to the elimination of the assessments because of non-compliance with the drain code in "virtually every step of the project."

Mack said that he found procedural errors in the project beginning with the first special notices of a public meeting in 1984.

"You are supposed to give ten days (public) notice by first class mail," he said. "The drain commissioner failed to do that. You are supposed to give ten days notice by publication—the drain commissioner failed to do that also."

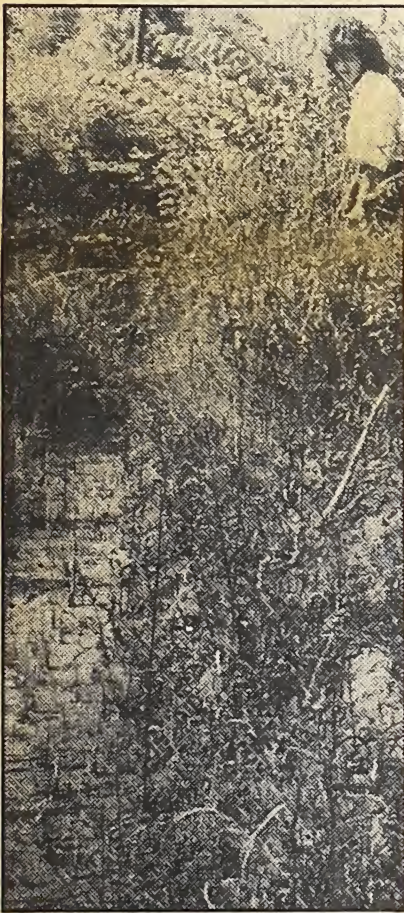

"These are jurisdictional defects on the part of the drain commissioner."

The investigation is expected to last at least three weeks and possibly months, Mack said.

"At least at this point, the assessments are not on the tax roles," he added. "I would hope that we could reach some conclusion, though, in the next few months."

Youngblood was repeatedly unavailable for comment. According to published re-

Police net $20,000 in forfeiture award

By CHRISTINE RIZK
ANP Staff Writer

A search warrant executed last year in a house on Ecorse Road may not have netted any criminal charges against the occupants but it has made the Romulus Police Department $20,000 richer.

In what is considered to be the city's first major drug forfeiture recovery, the department was notified last week by Wayne County Circuit Court that it would receive the confiscated property from the 1984 search.

In addition to the money, the department was awarded a vehicle confiscated in the seizure.

The police department filed for forfeiture in June 1985. Judge Richard Dunn Oct. 29 ruled that there was evidence that the items seized during the search at the Ecorse address were used for the sale and delivery of narcotics, therefore allowing for the transfer of the confiscated property.

The state forfeiture law, passed in 1982 and considered to be a motivating factor in executing proper search warrants, states that any property, money or merchandise that can be shown to be used in the sale of narcotics is subject to forfeiture.

Previously, a portion of the money went to the State of Michigan and the law enforcement agency conducting the search.

The Wayne County Prosecutor's Office last week indicated that all but $1,000 for the prosecutor's fee will go to the Romulus Police Department.

Based on information that stolen goods and vehicles were being concealed at a home at 31007 Ecorse Road, Romulus detectives executed a search warrant and discovered one pound of cocaine with a street value of $32,000 and a briefcase containing $20,000.

Also seized were numerous televisions, stereos, and appliances which were, according to police, apparently used for the bartering of narcotics.

As a result of the number of items found at the address, the Department of Public Works needed three dump trucks to haul away the evidence.

Because the evidence needed to obtain the property under the forfeiture law was less severe, criminal charges were dropped, leading the way for the forfeiture ruling.

The money will be used, as dictated by law, for the enhancement of further law enforcement activities.

Inspt. John Lewis Monday said that the department has not yet specified what will be done with the award.

Voters choose treasurer, 7 council members

As expected, Beverly McAnally and Linda Choate were selected to the offices of mayor and city clerk in the first election ever where the two positions were unopposed by other candidates.

Vying for seven positions for two-year terms beginning Nov. 12 were incumbents Mary Ann Banks, Barry Baumann, Alan R. Lambert, Noah P. Bergeron, William Wadsworth and Fred Junior Block.

Opposing them were Kathleen McCallum, Judith A. Ellis, Marie Diane Debuyscher, Ellis Pennington, Theodore Jacques and Melvin Zilka.

John Lewkowicz, Romulus' current treasurer, was opposed by Joyce Morgan in her first bid for that position.

The swearing-in ceremonies for the incoming officials will be held at 12 noon, Tuesday, Nov. 12. The public is invited to attend the activities in the city hall council chambers.

Group protests Khoury decision

By CHRISTINE RIZK
ANP Staff Writer

The city council's decision last week to retain Officer James Khoury on the city payroll has led a citizen's group opposing the move to promise a no-vote for the police millages scheduled for today's (Wednesday) election.

The group, entitled Concerned Citizens for Justice, passed out flyers and picketed in front of city hall both Friday, Nov. 1 and Monday, Nov. 4 in an attempt to persuade others to join in their opposition of the council action.

"We have every intention of not letting this go by," Dorothy Weekly, a member of the group, said. "We are asking everyone to reconsider their votes at the polls and vote no on the three millage proposals."

The millages ask for citizen approval to levy operating funds for the police and fire departments and a five-year levy for the construction of a police building.

The flyers call for a no-vote to discourage "support for this type of unjust action by the current city council and the officer charged with the criminal offense."

Pickers Michael Woods and Gwen Siberg said Friday that the city council is not responding to their inquiries about Khoury's payroll status.

"We've presented them with a petition over two months ago with 580 signatures and just last week with 390 asking for a full investigation into this," Woods said. "Not only are they not answering our questions, they saw fit to continue him on the payroll. We're just not getting any respect from them."

Minutes from the executive session, apparently voted by the council to be publically released, were not yet available one week after the Oct. 28 meeting.

The group called for the minutes to be made available for scrutiny before today's elections.

The city council Monday, Oct. 28 voted in executive session to return Khoury to the police force in an unarmed capacity until January, 1986, at which time Khoury will appear in circuit court on a manslaughter charge.

Shortly after the council decision, it was revealed that the officer was placed on a medical disability leave from the police department.

Khoury has been receiving an average 40-hour work week pay of $321.49 since June, when he was charged with the death of Birch Run Apartment resident James Hester after attempting to halt a fight between Hester and another man.

"We're going to be watching closely the results of the election," Weekly continued. "If we're successful in replacing two or three of (the council members) then we'll have shown that they have to listen to the people."

Group representatives, including Weekly, approached the city council Oct. 28 and requested that "elected officials cease and desist from using our tax dollars to pay the salary of Police Officer James Khoury."

The protests have drawn little reaction from either the police department or the city council.

According to Mayor Beverly McAnally, the city must remain silent on cases involving litigation.

"I don't object to their picketing, the First Amendment guarantees their right to peaceful protest. And they've certainly been peaceful," McAnally said.

The police department refused to comment on the group's actions.

Devil's Night 1985 labeled light by police

Police reported a relatively quiet night in Romulus during Devil's Night activities although malicious destruction of property claims are up from 1984.

A total of 15 fires were reported, including two in unoccupied buildings and one trailer fire.

In addition, numerous brush fires were reported on Beverly and Wayne roads.

All are being treated as arsons. Police have no suspects in custody and are considering the run of fire calls as Devil's Night pranks by youths.

"These parents know that teen-agers get into trouble on Devil's Night yet they let their kids roam the streets anyways," Sgt. Ray Vanpoel-

Inspt. John Lewis said only that the department has been carrying out its functions as usual and awaiting the outcome of the trial. Khoury's trial is scheduled for Jan. 7, 1986 in Wayne County Circuit Court.

voorde said. "It just doesn't make sense."

"I'm not saying that the majority of the kids were out there being malicious but it would help our job a lot more if these parents would just keep their kids at home on that night."

The department released extra patrols and utilized reserve officers to inhibit any serious Devil's Night escapades.

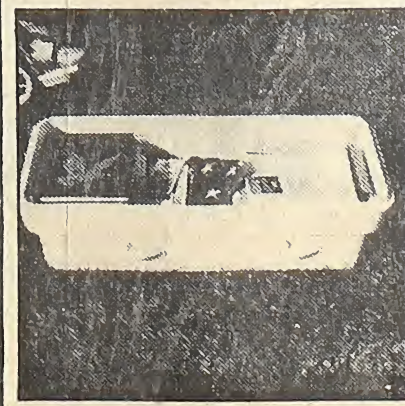

Possibly as a result of the increased force, only nine malicious destruction of property claims and five open hydrants were reported in addition to the fires.

The department last year recorded one structure fire, four grass fires and one vehicle fire.

Officials and residents gathered Saturday, Oct. 26 to bury the city's first time capsule scheduled for opening in the year 2035.

The event, sponsored by Romulus' Sesquicentennial Committee, was attended by those who donated newspapers, catalogs, tax roles, paycheck stubs, flags and other artifacts commemorating present-day life in the city.

Shown below is Dennis Davidson, community relations director, burying the capsule donated by Baum-Crane Funeral Home.

Problem youth program offered

A new youth program designed to help problem youth between the ages of 7 and 16 has recently been implemented by Wayne County Executive William Lucas and the county Board of Commissioners.

Lucas praised the program, saying, "It is much easier and less costly to divert a youngster away from a life of crime, than it is to attempt to rehabilitate a hardened criminal. The need to explore new and creative projects to prevent the youth crime is more acute than ever. The purpose here is to provide a clear alternative to youngsters who have already demonstrated a tendency toward delinquency—before they act out against society—before they wind up in jail or prison—in other words, before it's late."

This preventive and diver-sionary program will help youth, brought in on a referral basis, who display such problems as: truancy, substance abuse, vandalism, shoplifting and verbal/physical abuse.

In an effort to get to the root of the problem, the YDP will offer services to the parents as well as the child. Included are: Parent Effectiveness Training classes, scheduled to begin the first week of November at the Wayne County Youth Home, Youth mentors, employment and training skills as well as work service restitution, recreation programs and referrals.

Further information about the program may be obtained by contacting Sue Edwards at the Youth Development Office, 577-9232.

Belleville resident Amy LoDico was just "clowning around" recently as she entertained patients at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor. LoDico is one of 91 teens who participated in the program sponsored by the Catherine McAuley Health Center in Ann Arbor. Adult volunteers are still being sought for similar tasks. To sign up or for more information on the program, call the Volunteer Services office at 572-4159.

ADVANCE classes

Special schooling provides independence for the disabled

By JENNIFER SAWICKI
ANP Staff Writer

The classroom is typical. Large colorful posters adorn the walls and the bulletin boards are covered with bright sheets of construction paper. On this particular day there is a guest speaker. During the course of his presentation which includes a special song from Sesame Street's Oscar the Grouch, he is quizzing the students on their knowledge of fire safety.

But the answers aren't always typical and neither are the students.

The students are adults and members of a special day class for the developmentally disabled and emotionally impaired through the state-wide Project ADVANCE.

Introduced in 1980, ADVANCE, Adult Development and Adjustment Necessary for Competitive Employment, was created in an effort to provide non-institutionalized vocational training to persons with varying types of handicaps.

The students are referred to the program by various mental health agencies throughout Western-Wayne County. Many of the students reside in foster homes or are part of a supervised apartment living program.

The project which currently operates in several Western-Wayne County school systems, including Inkster, Romulus, Van Buren and Wayne-Westland, actually consists of five separate programs which try to help students achieve a maximum level of independence.

According to Jeanette

Donohue, a case manager with the ADVANCE program at the Tinkham Learning Center in Westland, the "independence comes at a great price for a lot of them."

Many of the students,

— Jeanette Donohue, Project ADVANCE

according to Donohue, come to the program after attending a series of institutions which leave many of them with a sense of no control over their lives.

As a result, Donohue said, there is often an initial resistance to the program.

"Many (students) perceive us as a part of their loss of independence and freedom of choice," Donohue said.

"They have to overcome that in order to have a measure of control over their own will," she added.

As a result, students are given a strong role in each of the programs offered by ADVANCE.

The initial program of ADVANCE is a vocational evaluation service. Students in the program attend the six-hour class Monday through Thursday for approximately four weeks. During that time they take academic achievement tests and vocational interest tests, receive an "employment readiness" assessment, attend simulated work stations and are graded on their work. At the end of the course the results and recommendations are discussed with the student and used as the basis of finding him a job—one that he is capable of doing and enjoys doing.

A second program offered by ADVANCE is an employability skills class, which is a five-week course. It is a practical class that teaches students job-seeking skills, how to fill out applications and other forms, resume writing, interviewing techniques and positive work habits, such as attendance and being on time.

Adult activity is a year-round class which works with the severely developmentally disabled student. This class focuses on pre-job skills, such as independent living skills and basic reading and mathematics instruction.

A fourth program is the Community Placement and Development Program (CDCP) which offers as a primary objective the chance for students to complete a high school education or receive an Adult Basic Education. Through the CDCP students are able to attend classes in mathematics, English, history, government, science and communications.

The fifth and final program is Project ADVANCE students Elsa Vanderbilt and Jim Martin look on as Chief Joe Benyo of the Public Fire Education Division in displays some of the props he uses in his fire safety presentation. In this particular part of the presentation, Benyo explained that the explosive power of one can of gasoline is equal to the explosive power of 14 sticks of dynamite.

the hands-on part of Project ADVANCE. Students attend the "Work Center" which gives the student the chance to experience a simulated work setting. Teachers work with the students to help improve the quality of the work and to increase their productivity to help ready the student for the similar demands of the outside job market.

According to Donohue, all the programs have enjoyed a measure of success.

"We have had students who have come through the program and are presently employed in the community. Not only have they adjusted to a social environment but they have achieved a measure of self-confidence as well," Donohue said.

"They are average people who have been interrupted in the course of their lives but have been able to move ahead of the stigma and take control . . ." she added.

Donohue cited the case of Richard (not his real name) who came to the program and remained for two years.

After an initial withdrawal, Richard began to take an interest in attending more classes.

He eventually volunteered to work with peers in a remedial reading class.

"He became a person who just bloomed," Donohue said.

According to Donohue, Richard has since moved out of the program. He is now independent, owns his own car and has found a job in the field of his choice — science.

According to Donohue both citizen response and business response to the program have been favorable, unlike reaction to similar programs which dealt with the developmentally or emotionally handicapped.

"The stigma exists but we are not looking at their handicaps. We are looking at their potential as people and what they can contribute to society and especially to themselves — we cannot bring them to their full potential if we focus on their being handicapped," Donohue said.

"They're real people . . . and I believe everyone should be able to have a taste of non-handicapped status," she concluded.

Taylor man found guilty in murder charge

By CHRISTINE RIZK
ANP Staff Writer

A Taylor man accused in the April 6 double homicide on California Street which left two men dead of gunshot wounds to the head was found guilty of first degree murder in a two-day bench trial in circuit court last week.

Robert Allen Williams, 29, was found guilty Oct. 29 by Judge Charles Kaufman in the deaths of Van Hooper, 24, and David C. Stanley, 28, of Taylor.

In addition to the murder charge, Williams was found guilty of felony firearm, which carries a mandatory two-year sentence.

Sentencing will take place Nov. 6. Williams faces mandatory life in prison.

Testimony by witnesses, according to Det. Sgt. David Early, indicated that a second person may have been involved although the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office has yet to issue any further warrants in the case.

Judge Kaufman attributed the first degree murder conviction to the "excellent job the Romulus Police Department" did in thoroughly investigating the case.

"The facts indicated a premeditated murder—one of the things that contributed to the case was the fact that the Romulus Police Department took a statement from (Williams) at the time of arrest," Kaufman said. "Their thoroughness helped convict him."

The conviction caps a five-month investigation into the deaths of the two men.

Hooper's body was found in the driver's seat of a black, 1980 Volvo riddled with bullet holes to the head and neck. He had been shot five times, according to police reports.

Stanley, found in the back seat, was shot six times.

Both men had apparently earlier planned to meet with Williams and another man on California Street where the murders took place.

Key testimony by one witness in the trial indicated that the two victims were seen together earlier in the evening. One California Street neighbor testified that he saw someone "running" from the car shortly after shots were fired.

The description, according to police, fit Williams.

The bodies of the two men were discovered by Romulus Officer Daryl Poe after the witness contacted police, saying he heard what sounded like a car backfiring.

Other key testimony and that which caused Judge Kaufman to comment on the thoroughness of the investigation by Romulus detectives was the linking of the murders to Williams without locating the actual murder weapon.

A statement taken from Williams prior to the May 6 preliminary examination in 34th District Court indicated that he had allegedly disposed of the gun in a river.

Several attempts by police divers failed to locate the weapon.

Instead, detectives followed a lead suggesting that Williams and a partner had fired shots at a road sign on an interstate highway two weeks prior to the murders.

Romulus detectives were able to locate, using a metal detector, the spent shell casings and, in effect, successfully link the casings to those found in the murder vehicle.

Early said that the motive for the killings appeared to be revenge.

Drain levies questioned ports, however, Youngblood said he had never experienced complaints about the cleaning of any other drains.

The drain controversy came to light when citizens received notice of their assessments in the mail in August and September, via a letter from the township indicating that the cleaning bill would be spread out over three years.

In letters dated Sept. 5, residents again received notice of the assessments, this time indicating that payment would be spread over seven years.

The extension apparently did not appease taxpayers in Huron Township who appealed to the supervisor, Ralph Dugan, to check the legality of the project.

A cursory examination by the township attorney revealed no improprieties so residents approached the Wayne County Commissioner's Office.

"What we're saying is that the drain should have been maintained all along," Arlene Spodeck said. "It shouldn't have taken so much money just to clean it."

Spodeck, a New Boston resident, was charged $3,017.53 for her portion of the drain cleaning.

"We didn't even know (the county) was cleaning the drain until they were actually out there dredging it," she said. "Notices were put in mailboxes and (the letters) weren't even registered."

Spodeck contends that she did not receive a notice of the public hearing and she knows of a few neighbors who were not notified.

Assessments ranged from as little as $72 to the $15,838.80 assessed against Forest City property in Huron Township.

Darrell and Nola Blount were just emerging from unemployment when their $8,900 assessment reached them.

A construction worker, Blount, 58, regularly dug ditches and sewer lines for a living before a severe drop in business.

He went to the county in 1984 and requested blueprint specifications for the drain project in an effort to offer his services, at least in his own backyard.

"But they told him he couldn't do it," Nola said. "They said he would be ticketed and fined if he tried to do the cleaning himself."

The county then cleaned the drain traversing 38 and one-half acres of their property and promptly charged them what Nola said was three times more than for what they could have done themselves.

In March, 1985, the Blounts received a letter from Charles Youngblood's office detailing the procedure for farmers to clean draincrossings on their property.

Admittedly, according to Mack, the letter came to late for the Blounts.

"I'm really concerned that a lot of people out there are going to be put in serious financial hardship as a result of these drain assessments," Mack said. "This investigation will not only concentrate on the Vandicar Drain—we're looking into the drain practices of the commissioner's office. We've succeeded in the first step. Frankly, I believe we ought to be making refunds to those people who may have paid illegal assessments."

Heart Association offers tips for hunters' outdoor safety

Those who plan to head for the great outdoors for this year's hunting season should remember that the cold weather and additional physical exertion required by the sport can set the stage for a heart attack.

As with all trips, there is a certain amount of planning that should be considered before a hunting expedition. Just as you should wear bright clothing, take precautions to guard against a heart attack.

"Hunting involves a great deal of exercise," said Joseph Rogers, D.O., chairman of the exercise committee of the American Heart Association of Michigan. "Every year there are stories about hunters who die from the unexpected strain of hunting."

For individuals under 30, most of these deaths are caused by overexertion in people who already have heart conditions. In individuals over 30, the heart condition is usually coronary artery disease, (the buildup of fat deposits in blood vessels).

"Hunters should see their doctors before the trip for an appropriate exercise plan," Rogers said. "The exercise plan is an important aspect in preparing for the trip because sudden physical exertion in an unconditioned body is dangerous for your heart, lungs and muscles. If you are in good health,

"Hunters should see their doctors before the trip for an appropriate exercise plan."

you will be able to handle the intense walking and carry the heavy camping equipment, which hunting trips require."

Another important point is, cold weather places an added strain on your heart because the blood vessels near your skin contract to conserve body heat for your vital organs. As a result, your heart is receiving less oxygen. To stay comfortable, wear one less layer of clothing than you would if you were outside but not exercising (layered clothing is better than one heavy layer). Also, use mittens, gloves or cotton socks to protect your hands, and wear a hat, since nearly 40 percent of your body's heat escapes through your head and neck.

"Also, make sure you are thoroughly familiar with the warning signs of a heart attack," Rogers said. "These signs include a feeling of fullness, heaviness or squeezing pain in the center of the chest, which may spread to arms, shoulders, neck or jaws and may be accompanied by nausea, vomiting, sweating or shortness of breath."

Some other tips for hunting include:

- Never hunt alone.
- Know where to get help in case of any kind of emergency. You should know how to reach the sheriff's department or other emergency medical aid in the area in which you are hunting.
- If you are on medication for your heart, make sure all members of your hunting party know where you keep your medication, and how it should be used.
- Don't tire yourself excessively. Take the hunting, eating and celebration in reasonable doses, and get plenty of rest.
- Watch your alcohol intake: though it may make you feel warmer, alcohol causes your body to lose heat faster.
- Get help to carry your catch out of the woods. It is physically demanding to do alone.
- "Taking the precautions mentioned here will not guarantee that you will get a deer this year, but it will mean that the chances of a potential tragedy have been reduced," Rogers said.

Novel school bus program

A safety education program to help reduce school bus related accidents, injuries and deaths has been developed by the Michigan Association for Pupil Transportation (MAPT) and AAA Michigan for kindergarten through third grade students across Michigan.

"Because 11,000 school buses carry 985,000 students per day, there is considerable potential for accidents," said Robert V. Cullen, AAA Michigan Safety and Traffic manager.

Michigan recorded 1,448 school bus accidents during the 1983-84 school year, the most current figure available. Since the 1971-72 school year, 37 students have been killed in school bus-related accidents. Twenty-four of the victims were in kindergarten through third grade, including 14 that were killed by the bus.

The program uses a three-dimensional bus cutout and multi-colored diagram showing the outline of a bus and the danger zones and correct walking areas surrounding it. The diagram also includes 10 safety tips on its reverse side. The kits, wall posters and plastic tote bags are being offered to all schools in Michigan.

"With these lessons, students can have fun and learn something which could save their life," said Ronald Byerly, MAPT president.

Safety Around the School Bus

CROSSING IN FRONT OF THE BUS...

1. Stop at the edge of the bus.
2. Look right and left.
3. Look at the driver for a signal to cross.
4. Keep watching for traffic as you walk.

WHEN WAITING FOR A SCHOOL BUS...

1. Stay a safe distance from the roadway.
2. Wait in a straight line.
3. No pushing or horseplay.
4. Walk to the bus when the door is open.
5. Use the handrail when boarding.

BEFORE CROSSING...
Walk 7 or more steps in front of the school bus. The driver must see you from head to toe.

SENIOR CITIZENS SPEAKS ABOUT LOCAL MAYOR

Dear Letter Writer:

I think our mayor is terrific and I would like you to help me put my thoughts on paper so I can give a presentation to our senior citizens group.

Dear Friends and Fellow Seniors:

I feel so strongly in my support of our mayor and his staff that I wanted to take this opportunity to present my views to you.

The mayor is a gentleman of integrity, honesty, responsibility and an obvious strong commitment to the seniors of our community as well as all of the other citizens. The mayor has consistently exhibited his loyalty to us and our city.

It is clear that our needs as senior citizens are first and foremost on the mayor's list. He is constantly working through his affiliates to protect our interests and long years of hard earned benefits. Benefits that are necessities and not luxuries in our lives.

His dedication to constantly provide programs and services designed to insure the comfort and enjoyable lifestyle of all citizens is evident at every turn. As an example, I recently called the mayor's office to seek his assistance in having carpeting removed from my home that was giving off noxious odors making me quite ill. Having spent a good part of the day with no success attempting to have the carpet removed by a local business, I called the mayor's office. Within hours, my problem was solved and the carpet was picked up. As a 90-year-old man, this was clearly a potential life-threatening situation solved by a simple phone call.

On numerous occasions, I have heard conversations among citizens regarding the drain situation as well as other local problems. It is a strong and faithful individual who is able to adequately make decisions as to how our tax dollars are to be spent. There are many dynamics involved in leadership and our mayor, as the custodian of our city, is courageous in his choices. It is very difficult to make "unpopular" decision.

I would encourage you to take the time to reflect on the importance of being able to readily reach a political representatives, receive good, sound advice and answers to questions that trouble us, and most importantly, reside in a city with a mayor who exercises an open door policy to his constituents.

If the present administration prevails in the upcoming elections, we will be the beneficiaries of his continued care and concern.

Together we will win - his success will be our reward!

Sincerely,SS

Beyond a reasonable doubt

"Are you getting calls, asking the identity of the official involved?"
"Do people think he's a school official?"
And so it went this week. Once again, the telephones were ringing, with criticism, questions and allegations regarding the identity of the victim of a homosexual rape who was the subject of a front page story.

Interestingly enough, the alleged victim didn't call to complain or to protect his identity. We heard from many others though, readers who apparently already knew the identity of the individual involved and wanted it printed. Several questioned our integrity and courage in not printing the man's name.

We wonder at some of theirs. Yes, off the record, the man had been, at first, identified for us. But it was off the record, and we promised those who gave us the information that it would remain exactly that, off the record. We did that with every confidence that we could obtain confirmation of the man's identity from any one of a number of other sources.

We were wrong. Once the furor began, no one, absolutely no one, would confirm that identity for us, all citing a new victim's protection law which becomes effective this month.

That law was approved for good and sufficient reason by our state legislators. Whether we see merit there or not is not the issue--the law exists, and when those who had the name at their fingertips were "re-minded" of it's existence, information became exceptionally scarce.

Our attorney gave us careful and sound advice. "If you have any reasonable doubt that this is not the man, don't print the story." What is reasonable doubt? And what if we did, in fact, have the wrong man? A front page story of this nature is the kiss of death to any political career. It is the end of a normal life for the subject...for a long, long time. That is a weighty decision and choice to make, and one we made after long and careful deliberation.

What if the name we had was yours...or your son's...or your brother's...your father's, perhaps? And what if we were wrong? What then?

We understand the victim's protection law, and the reasons for it. We were frustrated and irritated as we neared and then passed deadline, still attempting to gain confirmation of the identity of the victim in our story.

Official confirmation is still tentative, although the accused assailant has been arraigned and bound over for trial in the matter. Had this happened before deadline, and had we been able to find one source willing to name the victim and agree to verify that they provided that information should a lawsuit ensue, we would have used the victim's name.

We would have done that in an effort to provide the citizens of the community with the news...but we provide that news within the bounds of the law, and good taste.

We wonder at our critics actions in the same situation...particularly when some of them could have provided the positive identification that we needed.

As ye shall sow

It is an inherent reality that people make decisions moment by moment throughout their existence that lead them toward a destination or day of reckoning. They decide to go right or left, cooperate or argue, be pleasant or grouchy, honest or dishonest, spend the money or save it, back one candidate instead of another, do their homework and turn it in on time or not do it at all, seek compromise or confrontation, and so the list goes on endlessly. We make choices, and each choice contributes to the final outcome of situations which affect our lives.

We deal with life's situations with an attitude. Sometimes, we express or demonstrate an attitude of, "the glass is half-empty," or "the glass is half-full." We can greet our co-workers by saying "Good morning," or "What do you want?" We choose a course of action in all our relationships and endeavors that ultimately will determine if those human ties and pursuits will be successful or fail. We build the mountain a pebble at a time. Why then, do we act so surprised, I wonder, when the day of judgement arrives, our performance is evaluated, and we are faced with the hard reality that we have fallen short?

Where does it say you can be consistently rude to someone and yet they are still supposed to think well of you? Where does it say we can make many bad business decisions, but make up for it by making more of them? Where does it say that we can fail every test and quiz but "ace" the course?...Well, friends, the answer is nowhere. That isn't the way life works. Life is an accumulation of failures, or accomplishments...and in the end we will all be judged on our overall performance.

It would be nice to think that we could be right all the time, do any given task as well as it could be done every time, get an A on every test, or be bright and cheery with everyone in every conversation. For those of us who have not yet achieved sainthood that is not possible. Nor am I advocating here that any of us should try.

What I am suggesting is that each of us should examine our own performance, look into our mental mirror and evaluate critically what we see, with an eye on improved performance in all of our earthly endeavors and relationships.

To put all of this in better perspective, let me cite some specifics that come to mind. By the time this column appears we all will know who will serve on the council, be the mayor, or serve as treasurer. Those who have served in the past, will be judged by their perceived record of accomplishments or the lack of them. Those seeking political office for the first time will be elected to office or defeated based on the sum total of all the one on one conversation they participated in, all the speeches, all the ads, campaign literature, issue positions, and promises made during the entire campaign.

In business everyone talks about the "bottom line" meaning that when it all filters down, after you've made all the decisions concerning what you will spend money for, and what you won't, what kind of a sales effort you are able to mount for your product

Many witch hunts – many Salems

The usual editorial tirades against citizen apathy will, given any time at all, succumb to stupid jokes. Nonvoters take pride in avoiding the wrong choice by not making any choice at all, and people who aren't "joiners" would unite in their apathy--if only anyone showed up at the meetings.

The trouble with those jokes is that somebody will vote, and somebody will show up. A community can be ruined by the feeling that "somebody else" is pulling the strings.

Now that Gundella has told her well-practiced jokes and delivered her lecture on witchcraft to the students of Plymouth Salem High School, it might seem as if there is no more reason for controversy. People who argued vehemently against her appearance will probably throw away their cardboard signs, lose track of the petitions they circulated, and get back to the business of making a living for themselves and their families. And people who made neither protest nor public defense will probably continue to ignore such things.

But there is a lot of bitterness directed against the Plymouth-Canton school board. In a 7-0 vote they denied the appeal of Plymouth's Rev. Thomas J. Pals and allowed Gundella, a self-professed witch, to speak before a number of literature and psychology students. Despite moral and spiritual misgivings among several of the board members, they settled the controversy in the way they thought most appropriate for the community's educational system.

The depressing fact of the matter is that there really wasn't any "controversy" among the private citizens of Plymouth-Canton. Anybody who felt strongly enough to speak up publicly was against Gundella's visit.

There were nearly two dozen negative opinions, and no defenses from anyone except the school board members themselves. In the strictest sense, the board overruled the prevailing public opinion. That led to some ugly charges and statements from people who felt betrayed.

One woman, who presented 150 signatures collected against Gundella in only six hours, could not believe there were any "true Christians" on the board, and promised to work for the election of true Christian representatives to the board. A local pastor told the board that legal opinions were worthless; that legal opinions "didn't get the board off the hook" with the citizens. The pastor cited "the Word of God" as his authority.

Of course it is their right to demand more responsive representatives, and to work for change as they see fit. But to me, it was also a little frightening--and infuriating--to see the school board fighting against the tide of public opinion alone, without any support. It was frightening and infuriating to hear the religious and moral integrity of good people questioned, because they voted their consciences as educators and parents.

As a reporter (who is not a resident of Plymouth or Canton), I could not speak up, and my irritation was noticed by at least one woman in the audience. She questioned my ability to report on the proceedings in an objective way. Looking back on that night, I think I must thank her, whoever she is; I took greater pains to show both sides of the argument in my story.

I remember someone else, though, who touched me as a person, not as a reporter.

A small girl of 3 or 4 sat with her mother--close to the press table I was sitting at. Every time someone would finish a protest, much of the audience would burst into thunderous applause. The girl would cover her head with her arms, as if to ward off the frightening noise. As the applause died down, she would lower her arms and gently pat her hands together as everyone else had.

It would be ridiculous for me to claim that the child knew what she was doing, or that the incident has affected her opinions. But it has affected mine.

Because there was no "other side" presented at the meetings, a tremendous amount of momentum swung with Rev. Pals and his people. Unchecked, its result was a confrontation between the board and its constituency: the former determined not to give in to a roomful of people, the latter convinced they spoke for the community as a whole.

Meanwhile, the silent majority stayed at home, unavailable for comment one way or the other.

The controversy, in one sense, is over; the board made its decision and the other side has to live with it. But they don't have to like it. Frustrated people don't always let controversies die, especially when the opposition is a small group. There may well be other Salems, and other witch hunts.

Stockmeyer wins state educators' award

The Michigan Elementary and Middle School Principals Association has named Norman Stockmeyer Sr., President of the State Board of Education, as this year's recipient of the MEMSPA Outstanding Educational Leadership Award.

The award, presented each year to an individual for outstanding educational leadership, was given to Stockmeyer by William Mays, Jr., Executive Director of MEMSPA, at the association's annual conference on Oct. 16 in Grand Rapids.

"Norman Stockmeyer has literally devoted his life to serving public education," Mays said at the presentation ceremony. "Since 1946, when he first served as a member of the Wayne Community Schools - now Wayne-Westland Board of Education, Norman Stockmeyer has given more than 40 years of outstanding service to Michigan education."

Although records for years of service on school boards have never kept statewide, it is generally conceded that the Westland Realtor has devoted more years of service as a member of educational governing boards than any other person in Michigan history.

He has served for a total of more than 40 years as a board member for two Michigan Colleges - Wayne State University and the Detroit Institution of Technology. He served the Wayne Community School Board for 15 years and the Wayne Intermediate School District for 14 years.

Stockmeyer became a member of the State Board of Education in 1975 and is currently serving a term that ends in 1989. He was elected president of the State Board of Education in January, 1985.

Stockmeyer is a graduate of Northwestern High School in Detroit and received his associate of business degree from Wayne State University and his master of business administration from Havard.

Stockmeyer was inducted into the Michigan Education Hall of Fame in 1984. His wife, Lillian, is a former Detroit public school teacher and all four their children are teachers in high schools or colleges.

Willett, owner and publisher of Associated Newspapers, commented, "Art Sandstedt was to a great extent responsible for much of the success of our publications, and did a great deal to enhance the reputation of our paper in the area. or service and at what cost, the caliber of the people you chose to employ and at what expense, it all comes down to the accumulation of line items on the bottom line.

Life, gentle readers, is a bottom line situation. You can "lose money on the apples but make it up on the bananas," but you can't "lose on every sale but make it up on volume."

So it is with personal relationships. If we are courteous, polite and respectful every time we speak to another individual, then that accumulated experience over time will increasingly score you in their book as

"Ok". If, on the other hand, you act like a moron every time they speak to you, it won't take long before you are hopelessly labeled in their mind for what you have made yourself out to be.

Perhaps the problem is that we tend to see ourselves through rose-colored glasses, seeing only what we wish to see, and filtering out those habits or traits we do not care to acknowledge.

To attempt to please all is the journey of a fool, but to seek to be thought well of, is a destination of every wise man.

See you next week.

chef larry janes

Do you believe the old adage "An apple a day keeps the doctor away?"

Did you ever bring your teacher a big, juicy red delicious apple?

Ever wonder why grandpa never allowed the grandkids around the applejack crock in the fruit cellar?

Right now is the time when autumn sunshine has added it's final touches of red, green and gold to the apple. Eaten out of hand or enjoyed in a variety of delicious dishes, the versatile apple can carry sweet and tart memories for months to come!

Apples work at any meal. We have been made accustomed to apples in pies, sauce, fritters and muffins, not to mention those dipped in caramel and red sugar and even chocolate. Apples make outstanding additions to pork, veal romance (flavored with applejack) German apple cake, pancakes and even with a dollop of peanut butter, eaten on the run.

Before we begin with tips on purchasing, storing and cooking, let's clear up one basic misconception—that red apples are for eating raw and green ones are for cooking. Those luscious greens like Pippins and Rhode Island Greenings are delicious raw—so full of crispness, and mildly tart—just enough to bring a slight pucker. Among the reds, Rome beauties are unequaled for baking while Jonathans make great sauce!

Choose firm fruit with good color for it's variety. The background color of reds should be yellowish green. Too deep a green means immaturity, poor flavor and a starchy texture. Watch firmness especially with large apples, which mature faster than the small. Soft big apples are mushy and taste overripe. A good all-around size is two and one half inches in diameter. Skins should be smooth and unbruised; bruises turn into decay very easily. Another old wives tale: rust dots make for a rusty taste—the truth: rust dots (also known as russet) that are light will not affect the flavor or quality.

Keep firm, crisp apples at room temperature. If you won't be able to use them within a reasonable time, seal them in a plastic bag with all the air squeezed out, then store in the drawer compartment of your fridge. If they are to be eaten raw, set them out before eating to get them back to room temp. Personally, I love a raw, crisp cold apple right from the fridge.

To prevent discoloration of peeled apples, combine two tablespoons lemon juice with one cup cold water. Immerse the cut apples immediately, turning them until entirely coated with the liquid. You can use a commercial product such as "Fruit Fresh" which has a mixture of powdered ascorbic acid and other citric acids along with sugar. Make sure you follow the directions on the label.

In addition to the recipes for great apple dishes listed below, don't forget about enjoying them "au naturel". Bake a cored delicious apple in a little fruit juice and a sprinkle of cinnamon until tender. Try the same technique using some diet soda for a tasty low-cal dessert. I enjoy sauteeing them in a little butter and 2 tablespoons of brown sugar, then finishing with a splash of brandy. (Great served over ice cream) (O.K., so I had to retaliate after that diet idea).

However you choose to enjoy, now's the best time!

APPLE PANCAKES

Serves 2-3

- 2 large eggs
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- dash salt (optional)
- 1 apple, peeled, cored and sliced into thin strips
- 2 tablespoons sugar mixed with 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/3 cup flour
- 3 tablespoons clarified butter

Beat eggs until light and foamy. Add milk and 1 tablespoon sugar and beat 1 minute more. Blend in flour and salt and mix well. Preheat oven to 450 degrees. Melt butter in a 10 inch ovenproof skillet or baking dish. Arrange apples in a single layer in skillet and cook until sizzling, about 3 minutes. Pour batter over apples, distribute evenly. Cover and cook until a deep golden brown, about 3-4 minutes. Uncover and place in the oven until the pancake begins to puff and bubble. (about 5 minutes) Carefully flip pancake and return to top burner. Cook for 1 minute. Invert onto a warm serving platter and sprinkle with cinnamon sugar. Excellent served with sour cream.

Serving a pork roast, chops or duck? Try this nifty sauce on the side. Your guests will go wild!!!

SAUCE SUEDOISE

Makes 2 cups

- 1 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
- 1 cup thick applesauce
- 1 tablespoon horseradish

Combine all ingredients and mix well. Chill before serving.

CHEFS SPECIAL HINT: WHEN MAKING APPLESAUCE, SWEETEN AFTER COOKING FOR BEST RESULTS!

BAKED APPLESAUCE

Makes 3 cups

- The juice of 1 lemon (about 2 tablespoons)
- 2 pounds tart apples
- butter
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Pour lemon juice into a heavy ovenproof saucepan or casserole with a tight-fitting lid. Peel and core apples and quarter into the pan, tossing to coat with the lemon juice. Cut a circle of parchment paper slightly larger than the saucepan and butter one side generously. Place buttered side down over apples, cover with the lid. Bake about 1 hour or until apples have turned into sauce. Remove from the oven and flavor with sugar and cinnamon. Serve warm or chilled.

GERMAN APPLE CAKE

Serves 6-8

- 1/2 cup (1 stick) unsalted butter, melted
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 1/2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 5 tart large apples

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease an 8x8 square baking dish. Combine butter, sugar and eggs in a large bowl of mixer. Beat thoroughly. Add flour, baking powder and vanilla. Beat until well blended. Spread evenly into the baking dish. Combine sugar and cinnamon. Peel and core the apples and thinly slice into a large bowl. Add cinnamon-sugar mixture and coat thoroughly. Arrange slices on top of batter in overlapping rows and press lightly into the batter. Bake 1 hour. Cool and cut into squares if you can but it's even better right out of the pan with ice cream!

dan's dogs

Owners should "try the doghouse"

by dan a morris

Keeping your dog outside is the biggest mistake a dog owner can make!

The dog isolated in the yard, garage or even the basement will cause more headaches than can be imagined. In previous articles I have stated my belief that no dog should be outside without supervision. Why? To understand this, I have to explain why people think it's acceptable to leave a dog outside.

Owners feel that their dog needs fresh air and proper exercise along with freedom and time to play. Another reason often given is, "He's supposed to be an outside dog--look at all that hair!"

Pay close attention to the "outside dog." During the day you will see him run around and play for maybe 20 minutes, maximum. An owner could give his dog the same exercise by walking him working obedience lessons. But instead, the dog charges its owner and jumps on and around them when the pair finally do make contact. The owner thinks "This dog really loves me."

If the owner was left completely alone for a period of six months, he too, would greet people by jumping for job. The dog is in reality simply happy to see ANYONE.

Soon, the owner of this happy, outside dog begins to complain about the lack of control they have over their dog. This problem starts innocently enough. First, the dog is left outside for short periods of time--and then, because the backyard becomes a great "babysitter" for the family, and the dog is left outside for longer and longer periods.

I'm sure people can think of hundreds of reasons for keeping the dog outside--I've heard most of them. But the truth is, it's the easy way out. It's an excuse for lack of control of the dog. No dog owner will admit, or should I say wants to admit, that they don't have control of their dog.

Talking about one's dog is like talking about one of the members of the family. No one likes to hear anything negative about their relatives--or their dog.

Contrary to what you may think, a dog's coat doesn't offer the amount of protection from the elements we've been led to believe it does. Long-haired dogs can adjust to warm weather as well as cold weather, it's true, but if the dog is properly groomed, he can enjoy inside living exclusively. With winter just around the corner, don't leave your dog outside even with all that protective hair. The wind chill factor is just too much on any dog.

Frostbite, frozen ice between the pads of dogs' feet, and the loss of body heat can be the DEATH of your dog. And yes, I've heard the dog house excuse. My response to that is the suggestion is that owners bundle up and sit in that dog house for a day and a night--maybe then, they, too, could realize the importance of staying indoors, not only for the winter, but all year round.

Remember, while the dog is sleeping on those cold winter nights, his body heat is reduced because he is not moving. You could come out the next day to a dead dog.

People also amaze me when they take food and water out to these poor animals. They run out, drop the food and water in the dish and run back into the comfort of their home announcing, "Boy, is it cold out there today!"

During the night, the food and water given the dog can become a big problem. Any food left over is a temptation to rats and mice, not to mention stray dogs, cats, skunks, squirrels, raccoons and any other warm-blooded animal searching for nourishment. These animals could be carriers of rabies or leptospirosis. Can you take a chance on your dog being bitten by one of these animals or contacting any disease they may be carrying?

There is a real danger of leptospirosis to your dog from the urine of an infected animal--mainly rats. By the way, humans, too, can contact this disease in the same manner.

Keeping your pet outside causes your dog to be unruly. All "outside" dogs lack control. When the owner attempts to bring the dog indoors, the dog knocks over furniture, jumps on the owner and friends and has learned no housebreaking rules whatsoever.

The only answer is to control the dog through obedience training and give him rules to obey. Above all, the solution to the "outside dog" problem is to educate the owners.

How many dogs will die again this year because they were an "outside dog"?

On Saturday, Nov. 9 from 4:30 pm. until 5:30 pm. Inspector Gilbert Todd, Eddie Murphy's boss in the movie Beverly Hills Cop, will be at Movieland of Westland 8032 North Wayne Road (Oak Plaza north of Warren). You can have Gill autograph your copy of Beverly Hills Cop and get a 10 percent discount on your purchase. While you're there you can register to win a trip to Beverly Hills, California - no purchase is necessary. Also on Saturday from noon until 5:30 p.m., Movieland will video print your child for the cost of a blank tape. Even if you don't have a VCR, a video print is a good idea in case they ever come up missing. For more information call Movieland at 421-4380.

For a drink and a wink on a starry starry night visit the new "Moon Room" now open at Malarkey's Pub on north Wayne Road in Westland just south of Warren.

On the inside track, word has it The Golden Boy Restaurant at Elizabeth and West Michigan Avenue in Downtown Wayne will soon introduce a variety of Mexican dinners to the menu.

Speaking of menu changes... Robert Kwasney, owner of Chicken Charley's 560 W. Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth is changing into an A&W Restaurant complete with that world famous root beer. The former A&W in Plymouth closed last year after 27 years in business. Kwasney is bringing it back this time with a delicious twist. Along with the complete A&W menu, customers may also may also choose those same Chicken Charley's favorites including their very own broasted chicken. Sounds like a winning combo. The restaurant is still open and will remain though construction is underway.

Gary Sampson, owner of Adventure Travel 405 Main St. in Belleville says they're offering an "unbelievable" price on a cruise package to the Mediterranean. A 14 day cruise package starts at a low $1,399. For more information call Adventure Travel at 699-5400.

By george, they work! Nobody was more surprised than I was last week after I placed a classified ad in this paper. I got about 20 inquiries on my car for sale. Now I'm wondering, gee, what else can I sell? Anybody want a Pet Rock, slightly used?

See you next week!

DEAR CLIENT, IN MY OPINION; The Federal Reserve Board has been extremely generous in allowing the money supply (M-1) to grow at a rapid rate. This rapid supply of liquidity would lend strength to the stock market; but not to the extent represented by the "Dow Jones Industrial Index". The stock market seems to be feeding on itself. The current stock market action has confused most analysts . . . and I am no exception.

The only explanation that I can present is "the fear of inflation". Industrial prouction is flat to down, inventories are at a historical low level and consumers have large cash reserves. If we have a big Christmas demand, retailers will be short of inventory, and this will cause prices to move higher.

Once prices start to rise, it could take several quarters to regain control. The stock market may be anticipating this type of action. Interest rates will move higher this week, putting downward price pressure on bonds an interest sensitive issues. Gold and silver prices will also experience selling pressure.

For this week, short term traders will open the session on the sell side. Fear of falling prices will cause them to take profits; however, by midsession strength in the market will bring traders back on the buy side. Intermediate and long term traders holding second tier issues, will improving fundamentals, will not leave the market.

For this week, I see the market opening mixed to down on profit taking. Most market weakness will be short-lived. The market will change direction several times, as it tries to overcome a positive effect on the market. (For this week, the specialists will not be making a "market", they ARE the "market".)

OPINION FOR NOV. 3, 1985
NOTE: New construction contracts rose 1 percent last month to a record rate of $233 billion while new home sales dropped 2.6 percent to the slowest pace in five months; and the trade deficit swelled to a record $15.55 billion despite the decline in the value of the dollar.

Glenn routs Wayne for perfect year

Rockets soar

Soaring over Wayne Memorial's line of defense (above), Glenn tailback Tony Boles(33) scores one of the Rockets' touchdowns in a 31-7 victory over their natural rivals. The victory brought the curtains down on a perfect 9-0 regular season and put the Westlanders into the state playoffs for the first time in the school's history. At the photo at the right, Glenn coach Chuck Gordon discusses strategy with his troops.

Rockets take on Pioneer in playoff

By KEITH DeMOLAY
ANP Special Writer

Perfection. According to Funk and Wagnall's definition, perfection is the "highest degree of something."

For the Rockets of Westland John Glenn, perfection was realized last Friday night before an overflow crowd of 3,000 at Wayne Memorial's William Elliott Field when 39 young men and four managers banded together to defeat a stubborn Wayne Memorial 31-7.

That victory put the ribbon on a 9-0 regular Glenn season and it was also a ticket to the state's post season Class A playoffs.

But the victory was even more special than clinching the city championship. The victory, Glenn's 11th consecutive, clinched the school's first football playoff berth in the school's history.

"It will have to be regarded as one of the biggest games in school history," noted Coach Chuck Gordon, who was an assistant coach at Glenn the last time the Rockets posted a 9-0 record. "It not only clinched the city championship but also assured us of going to the playoffs."

Wayne, though, had different ideas. The Zebras entered the game at 3-5 under first-year coach Chuck Howton and had proved a tough nut to crack against the likes of Trenton and Monroe. They would like nothing better than knock Glenn out of the ranks of the unbeaten and out of the playoffs.

"Entering the game, we were aware of Boles and tried to contain him," said Coach Howton. "I was also concerned with Steve's (Irwin's) passing."

For the first half at least the Zebras caused quite a bit of nailbiting in the packed Glenn stands. The Zebras' defense, led by Mike Cooney, Kelly Claxton, and Dave Florn, combined to stop on their first series of downs, holding the Rockets to one yard.

But Glenn's defense was also equal to the task, stopping the Zebras on only seven yards.

After Glenn failed to move the ball and was stopped by an from Beasley, and 14 from Boles, whose last yard culminated in the touchdown. Tony Svaluto's point-after made it, 7-0.

Early in the second quarter, Glenn got the ball back again, this time when Doug Strehl recovered a fumbled punt on the 26-yard line.

Boles ran for eight yards, then picked up the first down to the 11-yard line. Beasley picked up two to the nine-yard line, then Wayne's defense stopped Boles for no gain.

But no problem for Glenn -- Irwin found his long-time passing-favorite Chuck Hammon-tree over the middle for the score. With Svaluto's extra point, Glenn led, 14-0.

Wayne finally got something going when Warner forced a fumble at Glenn's six-yard line. The Zebras were in business.

But business must have felt like a recession because the Rocket defense, like so many times this year, refused to buckle under.

The Rockets held Ken Edwards to no gain, dropped Jordan for a loss and held Danny McGraw to only one yard on a pass play.

But Howton has taught his team not to quit. After a pass that was caught out-of-bounds, Wayne was given second life because of a penalty. This time they made no mistake as full-back Doug Warner bulled into the end zone and Doug Quartuccio added the point-after to make it 14-7 at the half.

The Wayne fans were jubilant and thoughts of an upset danced in their heads while Glenn fans bit their nails and paced.

For John Glenn

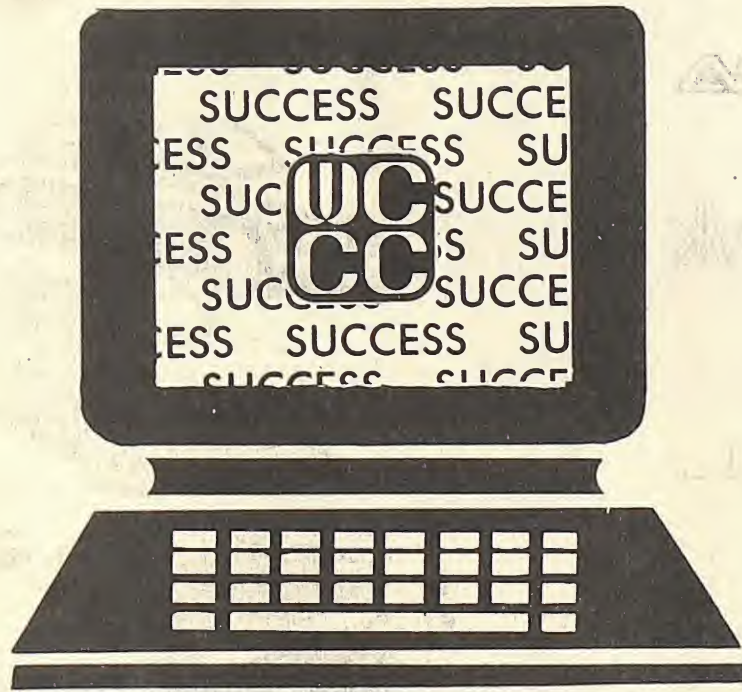

Congratulatory messages

Congratulatory messages are pouring in at Westland John Glenn after the Rockets turned back Wayne Memorial for their ninth consecutive victory of the season.

The victory earned for the Rockets a berth in the state Class A playoffs which will begin Friday night at 7:30 p.m. at Ann Arbor Pioneer.

"We'd also like to congratulate Coach Gordon and his Rockets and wish his team all the luck in the world in the playoffs," said James Oyer, president of the Westland Federation Baseball League.

CELEBRATING OUR 25TH ANNIVERSARY

On target

Right on target with this pass to Mike Hammontree was Glenn quarterback Steve Irwin who has been one of the mainstay of the Rockets' assault this season. The Westlanders have compiled a 9-0 record, heading into Friday night's playoff game with Ann Arbor Pioneer. Pioneer, the defending Class A state champ, has racked up a string of 20 consecutive victories. Starting the playoffs with the defending state champs is a challenge for Coach Chuck Gordon and the Rockets who are making their debut in post season play, according to the Glenn coach. "We know it's not going to be easy, but nothing has stopped this team all season. I'm sure we'll be ready."

Rockets are 'perfect'

"We were trying to figure out what to do in the second half," said Howton of his halftime strategy session. "We thought of an option or a counter option to get outside. The kids were pretty confident they could win the game."

But over in the Glenn locker room, quite a few things were popping down there. Gordon said, "We were disappointed in the way the first half went. We felt we helped set up Wayne's touchdown and let them back in the game. We weren't playing the way we were used to playing. We had to get things straightened out at halftime."

And did they ever. After allowing Wayne a few yards before the Zebras punted, the offense got their hands on the ball.

Or more specifically, Boles got his hands on the ball. The

Chuck Gordon
6-2 tailback, running behind the blocking of Todd Cobb, Don Croft, Tim Hardin, Rick Hasen, Steve Murray, and Paul Pomorski, picked up 67 yards of the 71-yard drive.

Glenn's power offense resulted in a touchdown, an 8-yard run by Boles, with Svaluto's point-after, Glenn led 21-7.

For the evening, Boles compiled 217 yards on 29 carries, enabling him to finish the regular season with 1,324 yards and 2,946 in his career.

Howton probably has seen all he wants of Boles, but he couldn't help comment on the tailback saying, "Most high schools don't have a back with the ability of a Boles. One like him only comes along once in 25 years. He's a tremendous runner and has a great future."

Which Gordon already knows. "Nothing Tony does surprises me anymore. He's had a great season and is getting better and better every game."

Early in the fourth quarter, Glenn put the game on ice and

Glenn girls retain Western Wayne swim championship

Piling up over 100 points more than its closest rival and sweeping eight of 11 first places, including both relays, Westland John Glenn girls retained the Western Wayne Swimming & Diving title.

Coach Jim Watts' Rockets finished with 352 points, easily defeating a field that included seven other area schools. Wayne Memorial, with 229, was second, followed by Riverview (170), Wyandotte(110), Livonia Franklin(106), Garden City (70), Woodhaven (53), Allen Park (46).

"I was very pleased with the way the kids swam in this invitational," said Watts who is in his third year as head coach.

"We are improving with each meet and that's what one of our goals is."

The Westlanders received an outstanding effort from double-winner Kelly Taylor who touched in first for the 200-yard individual medley (2:21.7) and also was the winner in the 100-yard butterfly (1:04.9). Taylor's winning time for the 100-butterfly was a school record.

Livonia Franklin also had a two gold medal winner in Ann Schlaefter who churned a 2:03.3 for the 200-yard freestyle, then was clocked in an excellent 5:33.22 in winning the 500-yard freestyle.

Glenn countered with victories in the 200-yard medley relay. Watts' line-up for that event included Mary Lawson, Annette Aimar, Kelly Ericson and Julie Joyce who combined on a 2:03.50 victory. The Rocket foursome of Kelly and Karen Taylor, Kris Purdon and Stephanie Dow was the winning combination for the 400-yard freestyle relay victory. The top time was 3:57.8.

Ericson chipped in the 500-yard freestyle as she touched in at 26.85 and the gold for the diving went to Westlander Jamie Koester who amassed 368.85.

Glenn also won the 100-yard freestyle and the 100-yard backstroke events behind the performances of Karen Taylor and Mary Lawson who were clocked in 57.89 and 1:06.09, respectively.

Woodhaven had one winner. She is Jill Roedin who carded a 1:14.13 for the 100-yard backstroke.

Tigers are undefeated

Belleville swims closer to title

Undefeated Belleville moved one victory closer to the 1985 Wolverine 'A' Conference swim championship with a lopsided victory over Lincoln Park. The Tigers buried LP, 124-39, taking nine out of a possible 11 first places.

Coach Sam Vicchy put together a team of Reiko Snider, Susan Duda, Karen Koltarczyk and Jennifer Powell who won the 200-yard medley relay event in 2:05.01.

The Tigers swept the 200-yard freestyle event as Jenny Schurr led the pack. She was clocked in 2:16.30, and was followed to the finish line by teammates Tracy McCormick and Rachel Snure. The winning time was posted as 2:16.30.

Karen Koltarczyk, one of the most versatile swimmers in the area, was clocked in 27.25 for her victory in the 50-yard freestyle. The Tigers also finished second and third in the event with Tracie Gentle and Gina Montie.

Laura Slem who garnered 130.90 points nosed out teammate Linda Parent, who had 125.30 for top honors on the diving boards.

Koltarczyk came back to pace a 1-2 finish for the 100-yard freestyle as she turned in a 59.89. Bambi Gross was second. In the 500-yard freestyle, Wendy Gaza, Rachel Spure and Natalie Schroeder gave the Tigers a sweep. Gaza's winning time was 6:01.70.

Christy Sikes's 1:16.50 gave her and Belleville a victory in the 100-yard backstroke and she was followed to the wire by mate Jennifer Ousley. In the 100-yard breaststroke, Schroeder was first with a 1:25.30 and teammate Kristen Howard finished second.

The Tiger 400-yard freestyle relay teams posted a 1-2 finish thanks to Schurr, Snider, Jennifer Powell and Gina Montie who captured the event.

Wayne breezes past Wyandotte

Dominating both the 200 medley and the 400 freestyle relays, Wayne Memorial breezed past Wyandotte 114-57 in a Wolverine 'A' Conference dual swim meet.

The Zebras went with Graham, Garlough, Conley and Viking in the opening medley relay and the foursome won the event with a 2:12.6. Wayne also had the second best time in the event thanks to the performances of Swiekowski, Walls, Trudeau and Martin.

In the 400-yard freestyle Wayne's line-up of Eidson, Graham, Graham and Basner accounted for a first place (4:16.3) and their teammates Wichowski, Conley, Gardner and Trudeau was second with a 4:18.3.

Gardner had the best time in the 200-yard freestyle (2:17.4) while Wayne wound up first and second in the 200-yard individual medley as Graham was clock-ed in 2:32.2, beating out teammate Sweikowski to the finish line. The second place time was 2:34.2.

King was second best in the 50-yard freestyle as she was clocked in 27.5.

Trudeau led Basner to the wire for the 100-yard butterfly. The winning time was 1:12.0. And in the 100-yard freestyle Conley (1:01.2) and Wichowski finished 1-2 for Wayne. Conley's winning time was 1:01.2. Gardner also won the 500-yard freestyle event with a time of 6:04.8. Basner posted the best time in the 100-yard breaststroke as she touched in at 1:19.0 and mate Garlough was closed behind with a 1:19.4.

Zebra session

Wayne Memorial learned the hard way why natural rival Westland John Glenn is ranked among the best Class A teams in the state this season. Glenn erupted to a 31-7 victory over the Zebras Friday night before 3,000 fans, and the Rockets' ninth victory put the frosting on an undefeated regular season.

The last Spartans

With the Cherry Hill School District scheduled to close doors and merge with Wayne-Westland at the end of the current school year, Cherry Hill is fielding its final teams. The distinction of carrying the Spartans' last banner in cross country belonged to Coach Jess Slough whose line-up included: Carin Mulrooney (front row, kneeling from left) Danielle Edwards and Tracie Palmer. Second row are Kurt Lindemann, Rick Farley, Bubba Zirker, Eric Busch, Robert Edgington, Dan Decker and Coach Shough.

Tolson, Opp set pace at finals

Local harriers earn all-state recognition

With Wayne Memorial's Ron Tolson and Westland John Glenn's Karen Opp setting the pace, area harriers earned all-state recognition at the Class A state cross country finals staged over the weekend in Flint.

Tolson, a senior who is following in his brother, Doug's footsteps (Doug was a prep All-American) finished seventh at state with an excellent time of 16:20.8 over a rain-drenched course.

In the meantime, Glenn's Karen Opp ended an outstanding cross country year with all-state honors. Opp finished 13th (the top 15 finishers at state are recognized as all-state), touring the distance in 19:39.1.

Teammate Ginger Rowland, who is a sophomore, gave the Rockets a 47th place finish after a 20:49.2 effort.

Glenn also received a 48th place performance from Dan Liedel who is a junior. Liedel's time was 17:06.

Inkster and Cherry Hill also placed two of their runners on the coveted all-state team. Inkster is represented by Kevin Eldridge while Cherry Hill is represented by Bubba Zirker.

Coming off of a victory at the Suburban Athletic Conference, the Vikings finished a disappointing 21 at the state finals.

"We had some problems," said Inkster coach Leavy Devoe, "and finishing 21st was far below our expectations. We hoped to be among the top 15 Class B teams in the state."

Top-ranked Fermtot captured the Class B title.

Eldridge earned his all-state stripe thanks to a 16:48 effort for the 5,000 meter run. That time was the 14th best in the field. The Vikings, a runner-up at the regionals, qualified as a team to compete at state. Their points were spread as follows: Daryl Swint, (61), Charles McKay (109), Charles Henderson (146) and Gene Taylor (149).

Jake's skates to first place tie in Wayne-Westland hockey

With about one-third of the regular season behind them, Jake's Lounge and Metro Stamp have taken command in the Berrington Division while Little Bill's Trophies has a three-point cushion in the Bonkowski Division of the Wayne-Westland Hockey League.

The "big guns" in the duel between Lindsey-Pavelich and V-D belonged to Dave Frankling and John Clearwood of Lindsey-Pavelich as Frankling scored four goals and picked up two assists while John Clearwood carded a hat trick and added two assists.

Ed Spontack accounted for the remaining goal while he also was credited with an assist. Ernie Kelm, Dave Milam, Nelson Vanderburgh and Dave Cherry each collected two assists in the contest.

Bob Murray and Bob Bowen carded the goals for V-D with Dave Robert, Chuck Puckett and Norm Beasley picking up assists.

Dave Fiero tallied twice and picked up one assist as Ed's Sports skated to a 4-1 victory over Harlow Tire. Tom Mazorowicz and Tim Souter rounded out the scoring. Don Middaugh received two assists while Arnie Cox carded one assist.

Harlow Tire's lone goal came off the stick of Gary Stanbury.

Jake's Lounge tallied three times in the final period and ended up with a 5-4 victory over Johnson's Bakery. Mark Tominak led the way for Jake's by scoring two goals and picking up one assist. Al Farina rattled the net twice while Terry Lindsey blasted the puck for one goal and got an assist. Ken Klinck, John Rogin and Dave Zajac each picked up one assist.

Johnson's Bakery got on the scoreboard with goals scored by Dave Quenneville, Dale Fawkes, Ron Jacobs and Mike Villemure. Quenneville also earned two assists. Corky Hays, Al Pulk, Jim Easley and Mike Zimmnicki finished the game with one assist.

Little Bill's Trophies erupted in the second period which led them to a 6-3 romp over Metro Stamp. Ken Murray led Little Bill's scoring with a pair of goals and also two assists. Tim Potts carded two goals: Phil Cerne rattled the net for one goal and received three assists; Conrad Madaleno slapped in one goal and picked up one assist.

Dennis (Duck) Broge finished the game with one assist.

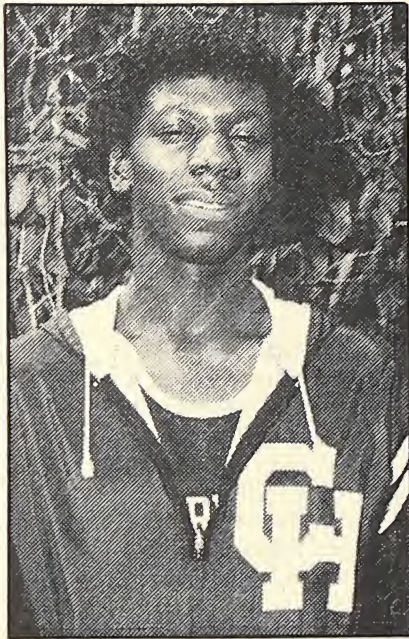

Metro Stamp had two goals scored by Charlie Morris with Craig Averill accounting for the final goal. Gary Riedel received two assists while Paul Brown picked up an assist.

Johnson's Carbonic exploded for five of its six goals in the first period en route to a 6-4 victory over Hide-Away Ranch. Jim Creekmore and Claude Johnston fired in two goals apiece with Creekmore also carding one assist.

John Jackovich slapped in one goal and picked up one assist as did Jerry Bockstanz and Ray Johnson finished the game with one assist.

Hide-Away got on the scoreboard in the second and third periods with Mitch Ramsey scoring two goals while Ken Howe and Tom Bryans rounded out the scoring. Ron Wojewski picked up two assists with George Sharpe, Curtis Oger and Jim Drewry each getting assists.

Looking at Sunday, Nov. 10, the schedule at the Wayne Arena reads: Lindsey-Pavelich clashes with Jake's Lounge at 6 p.m.; Harlow Tire will host Hide-Away Ranch at 7:15 p.m.; Little Bill's plays V-D at 8:30 p.m.

Glenn clashes with Pioneer in playoffs started packing for Ann Arbor when Boles ran 76 yards, virtually untouched, for a touchdown, the 32nd of his career.

Wayne made good efforts to score as Quartuccio got his passing game going, completing passes to McGraw and Shawn Howard.

But an interception by Mike Hammon negated one opportunity and Hassen's blocked punt stopped another.

The blocked punt created the last scoring opportunity for the Rockets. Following Gary Cloud's seven-yard gain on third down, Svaluto booted a 26-yard field goal for the 31-7 final margin. Svaluto's field goal was the sixth of the season, breaking a Glenn record held by Todd Jennings and Chris Piazza.

Now it's on to Ann Arbor Pioneer where the Rockets take on a team that has won 20 straight and is the defending Class A state champ. Kick-off is 7:30 p.m. Friday for this pre-regional game.

"It's a thrill for us to get in the playoffs. We're going to start off with the defending state champs who have won 20 in a row and playing in their backyard. We know it's not going to be easy, but nothing has stopped this team all season. I'm sure we'll be ready."

On Thursday, the Glenn Junior Varsity also brought the curtains down on a perfect season with a 27-13 victory over the Zebras. Ken Jones rushed for 196 yards and Eric Thornton scored a touchdown and a key fumble recovery.
